Two-thirds of Senate leave seats this year

By JOHN FERAOK
Student government editor

Longevity on the Student Senate may be a thing of the past as membership figures show a growing increase in new members and a decrease in incumbents.

Since the 1993-94 school year began, 21 of the 30 senate members are brand new to the senate. Last year, things weren't much different when 18 students were freshman senate members. Only senate members Katina Gillespie, Lance Phillips and Michelle Maddini still remain from the

At Wednesday's senate meeting, new senate members Jodi Chapman, Katherine Close, Chris Boyster, Kathleen Allen, Julie Proscia, Jim Bollou and Matthew Thrun pledged their loyalty to the senate to serve for the best interests of Eastern's students.

While some may argue 21 new faces leaves the senate without stability, Senate Speaker Bobby Smith thinks this year's group of senate members has made several significant accomplishments.

"It'd be nice to have five or six people that have been there on senate for two or three years all the time," said Smith, who joined the senate in January 1992. "As long as enough people know how to get things done is all that matters, though."

Smith praised the senate for establishing a campus-wide recycling program, which included last week's arrival of 33 aluminum recycling bins on campus, and senate's unanimous resolution requesting information from Eastern administrators on academic adviser John Coffey's reassignment from the Academic Development Center to the education department.

Smith attributed senate's high turnover rate to those members who join senate "for all the wrong reasons."

"It's easy to show up for Wednesday meetings or spend an hour a week in the (Student Government) Office," Smith said. "They're not part of what's really going on. Those people just show up at meetings and don't participate. The good senate members are leaders, and they take up projects on their own."

Senate member Greg Essenpreis, one of nine students who joined the senate for the first time in last November's election, said he doesn't see a lack of stability

Over the past year, the 30-member Student Senate has experienced a large turnover. There were 18 new members in '92-93, and there have been 21 new members this year. Below is a breakdown.

as a problem.

"I see it as a step in a positive direction. We have a bunch of people who want to work together."

Essenpreis said he thinks the seven students appointed to fill senate posts at

Wednesday night's meeting will definitely make a positive impact on the senate.

"There were three or four of them already in the (Student Government) workroom on Friday," he said.

Candidates blast tuition increase

By CHRIS MOCH
Staff writer

Two candidates vying for seats on the state Legislature said they oppose the Illinois Board of Higher Education's proposed 3 percent tuition hike for the 12 state universities.

David Carpenter, a Democratic candidate from Charleston, and Charles Mattis, a Republican candidate from Oakwood, agreed that the lack of state funds allocated for higher education is primarily why state universities have to keep boosting tuition costs.

Carpenter, an Eastern English professor, will likely square off against incumbent State Rep. Mike Weaver, R-Ashmore, in the November general election. Mattis, an elementary school teacher, will likely be pitted against State Sen. Harry "Babe" Woodyard, D-Chrisman.

"I think it's regrettable because it illustrates what happens when the state's appropriations from general funds diminishes over the years," Carpenter said of the proposed tuition hike.

From 1985 to 1994, he said the average tuition and fees in Illinois for public universities increased 108.1 percent while the states general funds appropriations for higher education increased only 47 percent.

Mattis said the government is not allocating enough money for higher education. He said state funds are being earmarked for other agencies and efforts instead.

"I'd rather see the state put the money in education and make education a priority," Mattis said.

Mattis said rising tuition costs sets a pattern toward making college unaffordable. He added, however, that the money from tuition hikes enables the university to hire more and better faculty.

"I'd like to have the cost of tuition as reasonable as possible," he said.

Carpenter said he thinks 3 percent is a fair hike because it tracks inflation and the cost of living. He said he

Roy Lanham, director of the Newman Catholic Center and adviser to Eastern's Haiti Connection, beats a drum as two members of the Haiti Connection carry a coffin symbolizing the over 4,000 Haitians that have died since the military coup in 1991.

Students remember Haitian coup victims in solemn vigil

By CHAD GALLAGHER
Staff writer

Students gathered in a solemn setting outside Booth Library Sunday for a candlelight vigil to begin Haiti Solidarity Week.

For the second year, Eastern's Haiti Connection, a student group working to win support for the return of democracy to the Caribbean island nation, is sponsoring events to mark Haiti Solidarity Week.

Students waited in two parallel lines, holding candles as a man in a black hooded robe beat a drum and lead the way for two others carrying a coffin to symbolize murdered

Haitians.

The blood-red lettering on the black coffin read, "4,200 people dead since the coup."

Roy Lanham, director of the Newman Catholic Center and adviser for the Haiti Connection, began the vigil by reciting a Haitian prayer, followed by other prayers read by attending students.

After the prayers, a Creole song was sung in remembrance of the thousands of Haitians killed.

The Haitian people have been living under military rule since Sept. 30, 1991, when the popularly elected President, Jean-Bertrand

Actor Joseph Cotten dies at 88

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joseph Cotten, the polished Virginian who became a star with "Citizen Kane" and went on to play opposite Marilyn Monroe, Bette Davis, Ingrid Bergman and others, died Sunday of pneumonia. He was 88.

Cotten died at his Los Angeles home at 6:30 a.m., and his wife, actress Patricia Medina, was at his bedside, said Cotten's business manager and attorney, Hugh Robertson. He had been ill for several months, Robertson said.

He had a massive stroke in 1981 and lost his voice entirely.

Speech therapy allowed him to talk again, but his acting career was over.

Cotten's smooth, low-key personality made him an ideal leading man for Hollywood's most famous actresses, and his versatility allowed him to play both villains ("Shadow of a Doubt") and heroes ("The Third Man").

would prefer gradual increases in the future rather than large, abrupt changes.

"I think (higher education) in Illinois continues to be affordable and the demand remains high, but we need to address and remedy the state government's habitual underfunding of public education," Carpenter said. "I don't agree that the state is doing what it could to keep these increases a minimum."

Mattis shared Carpenter's view that the government has not done all it could to help students with their educational costs.

The IBHE recommended the 3 percent tuition increase at its January meeting. The board gave the cost of living and inflation as reasons for the proposed hike.

The decision of how much to raise tuition rests with the universities' governing boards. The Board of Governors, which oversees five universities including Eastern, has said it will try to keep the hike as close to 3 percent as possible.

Last year, the IBHE recommended a statewide tuition freeze. Tuition at the five BOG schools has stood at $1,848 per semester since fall 1992.

Aristide, was overthrown in a violent coup.

Since that time, the military and coup leaders have mounted a campaign of repression against the people, killing more than 4,000 and forcing hundreds of thousands to flee or go into hiding.

According to a press release from the Haiti Connection, "President Clinton has broken his campaign promise to provide a safe haven for those seeking political asylum by ordering United States Coast Guard officials to automatically return refugees to Haiti without adequate hearings (which is illegal under international law)."

Upon returning to Haiti, refugees are fingerprinted and often beaten or jailed by the repressive military, Lanham said.

Lanham said his goals are to raise awareness of the Haitian problem and put pressure on Congress and United Nations to take actions to restore democracy.

"The U.S. and U.N. have been dragging their feet about the possibility of a popular-vote election," Lanham said. "We just want to bridge the gap between us and our Haitian brothers and sisters."

A popular-vote election by the Haitian people would bring to power a democratic president and end the bloodshed and torture, Lanham said.

Haiti is considered the poorest nation in the western hemisphere, he added.

The Haiti Solidarity Week will begin Monday with a lecture on Haiti, "A Personal Reflection and Current Realities," presented by Myse Andre Pierre, a Haitian leader of the Lavalas Movement, which works to return democracy to Haiti.

On Tuesday the Haiti Connection will present "A View of Haiti," a slide show. On Wednesday a presentation titled "Vodou: A Haitian Way of Life," will be put on by Dr. Bob Corbett, executive director of People to People, a group that provides humanitarian aid to Haitians.

All presentations will take place at 6:30 p.m. in the Neoga Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Students, faculty consider child-care

By NATALIE GOTT
Staff writer

Although implementation of a full-service campus child-care center is probably years away, students and faculty seem to agree it is an idea worth considering.

Speaker of the Senate Bobby Smith continues to research starting a program that would provide free care for children of Eastern students and faculty.

Smith, who called on the university to lay the groundwork for a child-care service in his State of the Senate

"I have seen kids running around in the Union while their parents are in class or at meetings."

— Bobby Smith

Speaker of the Student Senate

address last month, said the program may not be under way for as long as 5 years but it is still worth researching.

"I have seen kids running around in the Union while their parents are in class or at meetings," Smith said.

"It would be better if they had a safer place to play."

Jane Ozier, director of child-care services and referral, said the home economics department submitted to the administration last year a request to expand its existing child-care program.

Administration officials turned down the request, however, saying it could not be a priority because too few people would use it.

Smith said the increasing number of high school pregnancies should also figure into a decision.

"I think it is a positive move," said Faculty Senate member Bill Addison. "We are getting more and more non-traditional students and students with kids. I have even had students ask me if they could bring their kids to class."

Eastern recognizes misuse of university credit cards

By ANDY PURCELL
Campus editor

Some Eastern employees with American Express Corporate Credit Cards have used the cards for personal expenses, university officials reported.

A notice in the Jan. 21 University Newsletter reminded university employees that the cards are to be used for business-related expenses only.

According to the notice, "Each month the university receives reports of charges, places of expenditures and individual card member account status, which includes average monthly charges and current charges as well as delinquent accounts."

"In recent months, these reports have indicated a trend of increasing expenditures at retail outfits and accounts past 30 days due."

Suzanne Ashmore, administrative assistant in Eastern's business office and corporate card administrator, downplayed the issue saying the use of the cards for personal expenses is not yet a major problem and that the notice in the newsletter was a preventative measure.

"It's not a big deal," Ashmore said. "We were noticing this trend and we want to get it taken care of before it turns into more than a trend."

"Individuals get billed at their homes and are responsible for paying their own balance," Ashmore said. "They are not supposed to use the card for personal expenses. It's for business related expenses only."

Although individuals are billed at their homes, the monthly card reports from American Express allows university officials to monitor where the cards are used and how much is charged on each account, she said.

Ashmore said Eastern administrators decided to use the corporate card system because Eastern does not give its employees monetary advances for business-related travel expenses.

Employees pay their own travel expenses and are reimbursed by the university at a later date.

"The card system allows them to charge the expenses and then pay the bill once they are reimbursed," Ashmore said. "This way they don't have to charge up their own personal credit card."

Eastern to offer alcohol series

By ADAM McHUGH
Activities editor

A new series offered by Eastern's Counseling Center will allow students who grew up in alcoholic families to discuss their experiences and learn how to cope with the situation.

"Adult Children from Alcoholic Families," will begin at 7 p.m. today in the Oakland Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Karola Alford of Eastern's psychology department will moderate the discussion, which will be conducted as a four-part series, concluding Feb. 28.

"It is nice to be able to hold workshops that target a specific group, because people with something in common can often support others," Alford said.

Because the workshop is being offered as a series, students who attend will be more comfortable as it progresses, making the support group a success, she added.

"The first night will be a chance for students to get comfortable, then we can move on to talking about their experiences if they so desire," Alford said.

Alford, who conducted a similar workshop at the University of Illinois in Champaign, said if the turnout for Eastern's workshop is anything like that at Illinois, she will be satisfied.

"This type of workshop is maybe the first time those who attend have been able to talk about their family situation, and that makes them feel relieved that they are not alone in this," Alford said.

She said families' situation vary dramatically because alcohol affects its users in different ways.

"It really depends on how much stress is put on the family because of alcohol abuse," Alford said. "In some families, the person who is abusing the alcohol can hold down a job and be respectable, while others have fights, and often lose their jobs."

Applications higher at costly universities

CHICAGO (AP) — Some of the nation's most expensive universities are getting applications from record numbers of high school seniors — a trend some credit partly to an increased faith in the national economy.

Earlier this month, Yale University reported a record 23 percent increase in applicants.

Applications at Stanford and Harvard are up at least 7 percent.

The University of Chicago and Northwestern University also are among schools receiving record numbers of applications, the Chicago Sun-Times reported Sunday.

The University of Chicago's applications for next fall's freshman class are up more than 18 percent to a record of about 6,500, said Ted O'Neill, admissions director at the university, where tuition is $18,207. Those students will compete for 900 openings.

"Things happen so fast, as if people are acting in concert and you don't know why," O'Neill said.

WEIU-TV debate moves in better direction for all

It was a long time in coming, but both sides on the WEIU-TV-Mid-Illinois News Scan debate are finally showing signs of a willingness to work for what will be best for students.

WEIU-TV General Manager John Beabout met with WEIU-TV students Thursday for a two-and-a-half hour meeting, at which the students were asked to submit a proposal to WEIU administrators listing desired changes to the Mid-Illinois News Scan program.

The students were asked to submit proposals after three student representatives expressed their dissatisfaction with the joint-media venture between WEIU-TV and Mid-Illinois Newspapers. Since November, News Scan has been taped in the newsroom of the Mattoon Journal Gazette using Mid-Illinois reporters and editors as anchors.

Earlier last week, 14 WEIU-TV students signed a petition requesting the production of the news program be returned to a live format produced, directed and anchored entirely by students from the WEIU-TV studios in the Buzzard Building.

These students should be commended for taking the initiative, albeit months after the fact, to attempt to change what they feel is wrong with News Scan as it currently exists. Two students said they did not come forward with complaints sooner because they feared it might damage their relations with station administrators and could result in them being labeled "trouble-makers." They felt they were being shortchanged by their reduced role in the current format, and they said so.

It's also good to see faculty and administrators finally taking the students' complaints seriously. Last semester saw little more than the wringing of hands by many faculty and administrators after the plans to implement News Scan were announced. In addition to Beabout, the students have met with Terry Weidner, associate vice president for academic affair and the overseer of WEIU operations and are now awaiting a meeting with Eastern President David Jorns.

But as good as it is to see both sides willing to work together, it won't be a real victory until a real compromise that benefits students can be reached.

“TODAY'S QUOTE

Every human benefit and enjoyment, every virtue and every prudent act is founded on compromise and barter.

Edmund Burke

Maybe we could all use a good road trip

In my world, she would be considered a loser.

My cousin from Ireland had come to the United States just short of her masters degree and with no desire to get a job. She said she wanted to travel, see the world and experience the good and bad of the earth.

As we talked, she posed a haunting question: "What good is the degree if you don't know what's out there?"

Her question haunts many of us. What good is a degree without any world experience? And isn't going out and experiencing the world better than settling for a quick four-year degree and standard internships during the summer?

Are we cheating ourselves?

In the '60s, dropping out and seeing the world was more common than it is in the academic grind of the '90s. Beatnik Jack Kerouac's novel "On the Road" was and still is an inspiration for many our generation to go out, experience the world and take in all of life's grit.

Unfortunately, the chronicled wanderings of our generation have been relegated to articles in "Vogue" magazine. In the February 1993 edition, the author of a hit-the-road piece lamented that restaurants in the Great Plains region don't serve fruit or green vegetables.

Instead of the seeing the country ourselves, we have allowed it to be translated for us by our parents, teachers and — even worse — pop culture writers.

For the most part, we're all trapped in a vicious circle: We're all too concerned about making money for school, doing internships and getting a job after we graduate to even consider a week-, month-, or summer-long jaunt across our country. The closest most college students get to traveling across country is a blackout-laden trip to South Padre, Texas, which is already too-well chronicled by MTV.

But can we afford to forsake the personal experience of going on the road? What are the consequences for not taking the risk of escaping our cozy, sheltered college environments and actually seeing the heartbreak and the splendor of our country and our world. How many of us have imagined seeing some of the nation's great landmarks, or just seeing the everyday buildings and people that make up our society?

This would not be a chance to see just the good, however, but to come face-to-face with the ills of our generation. Traveling the country would give us the opportunity to talk to the children of the street and to hear their stories, to live in a homeless shelter and to see the mediocrity of the country and learn how they exist, live, love and learn.

If there was ever a chance for some true cultural diversity, traveling across the country would be it.

The more I talked to my cousin, the more I wanted to hang my head in shame. Like many of the students here, for me to just drop out and see the country was an impossibility — a formula that doomed you to failure. To many of us, a few months of seeing the world means putting school off for another semester, hurting your chances to get an internship, putting your career on hold and wasting money that could be used for school.

I have already failed once in my attempt to make a jaunt out into reality. This summer, on the way back to my job, a sign on the road said Cleveland was only 300 miles away.

I will never know what types of people, places and experiences were in store for me on that 300-mile trip. I took the exit to the freeway that brought me back to my usual safe and cozy existence. My cousin would have been ashamed.

But there's still hope — for all of us. Both copies of Kerouac's "On the Road" are currently checked out of Booth Library.

My name is on the reserve list.

Columnist was unfair in judgment of Eastern students

Dear editor:

This is response to Joseph Anglum's Jan. 27 column, "Students need to act more like students" in The Daily Eastern News. I feel that this condescending tirade was unfair to an overwhelming majority of Eastern's students.

Anglum, your privilege of traveling all over this country obviously did not include a college visit. The irresponsible behaviors you refer to are quite common at universities across the country. Eastern is not some sort of haven to which the degenerate students of the world flock. I find it absurd to imply that this sort of conduct is unique to Charleston's campus.

So let's say your problem is with the behavior of college students in general. My perspective on this subject is similar to yours. I, too, spent some time working in the "real world" after graduating from college, and have returned to the college environment. Like you, I have met students with "confused priorities," who like to party and whose ultimate concerns are not always academic.

Your turn

But I have also met students who wish to succeed and who are genuinely concerned about the future. The funny thing is, they are the same students. You see, the "imbeciles" you encounter are students who, as you wrote, are away from home and parental authority for the first time. They are on a path of discovery in which they act as they see fit and adjust to the consequences of their actions.

A few students adopt the lifestyle you depict, and they will have to face the sobering truths of a world which operates differently than they expect. But the vast majority of students will emerge successfully from their college careers. They will then learn to survive in the "real world" and learn how to answer its challenges.

I agree with your belief that the only way to learn what the "real world" is like is through daily experience. No amount of schooling can prepare someone for the responsibilities and situations that life in the post-college world has to offer. Did you figure out life as an undergraduate? If so, congratulations; I know I didn't. Much of my behavior as an undergraduate, by your standards, would be considered "moronic," but I also graduated with honors from the University of Illinois.

In your own words, "No test can measure the worth of a human being. This must be determined by one's own self evaluation." You could not be more right. Let the students discover their own self-worth and worry about yourself.

Maybe you should reread your own column. It comes across as very judgmental. "Maybe the fittest might survive after all, but as it stands, I'm still laughing." Keep laughing, Anglum. The fittest will survive, and the Eastern alumni among them will be looking at you in their rearview mirrors, chuckling to themselves.

Contest to shoot at world hunger

By CHAD GALLAGHER
Staff writer

Long-distance basketball shooters will team up to take a shot at world hunger in the World Food Day Three-Point Shootout from 2 to 5 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 19, at Lantz Gymnasium.

The shootout, which is sponsored by Eastern's chapter of the Public Relations Student Society of America, will benefit the hungry in Coles County and is open to anyone 14 years old or older.

Jeff Ormond, director of promotions for the PRSSA, said the shootout is presented by Wal-Mart and What's Cookin' restaurant.

A registration table will be available for students to enter at the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union from Feb. 14 to 18, Ormond said.

Those interested in participating in the event may pre-register until Feb. 12 for $5. Registration on Feb. 19 begins at 1 p.m. at Lantz Gym and will cost $6. A portion of the proceeds will be donated to the Coles County World Food Day Committee, Ormond said.

The remainder of the proceeds will go toward a scholarship for public relations students next fall, Ormond said.

Players will shoot three racks of basketballs from the three-point line.

The four players with the top four scores will advance to the semi-finals at halftime of the Eastern men's basketball game against Wright State at 7:30 p.m. on Feb. 24.

Entry forms can be picked up at the following locations: Wal-Mart, What's Cookin', Blimpie's, Dwight's Garage of Westfield, Wilb Walker's and the YMCA of Mattoon. Completed entry forms can be sent to: PRSSA, P.O. Box 861, Charleston, Ill., 61920.

Conviction encourages hope in similar case

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — If Edgar Evers' children can come to see their father's murderer behind bars, why, Dennis Dahmer wonders, can't he?

Dahmer's father was also a victim of a racially motivated murder in the 1960s, and the son — now a Baton Rouge, La., businessman — is among those who hope that the conviction of Evers' killer will encourage the reopening of other, similar cases.

"Maybe this Evers' case is an indication that the citizens of Mississippi are willing to deal with these cases the way it should have been done 25 or 30 years ago," Dahmer said. "Maybe things have changed."

Some civil rights leaders have expressed similar hopes, some comparing the long-dormant race killings in the South to the deeds of Nazi war criminals. The statute of limitations, they say, will never run out.

"There ought to be no refuge in space or time," said Circuit Judge D'Army Bailey of Memphis, Tenn., founder of the National Civil Rights Museum. He spoke one day last week while attending the trial of Evers' killer.

Byron De La Beckwith, an unreconstructed segregationist and steadfast racist, was convicted Saturday of murdering Evers, the Mississippi field secretary for the NAACP, in 1963.

Evers' killing was the first assassination of a civil rights leader in the 1960s, and one of many racially motivated murder cases that sat unsolved for the past several decades.

Vernon Dahmer, a cotton grower and grocery store owner in Hattiesburg, was active in encouraging blacks to register to vote, and for that the Ku Klux Klan fire-bombed his home on Jan. 10, 1966. Dahmer died.

Democracy, freedom remote for Haitians

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — When Haitians pushed out dictator Jean-Claude Duvalier eight years ago Monday, the nation seemed ready to abandon its nearly uninterrupted history of tyranny.

Three years ago Monday, another step toward democracy was taken when Roman Catholic priest Jean-Bertrand Aristide assumed the presidency.

But Aristide has been in exile for years now, Duvalierism has returned and freedom is as remote as ever.

The military sent Aristide packing in September 1991, killed hundreds of his supporters and brought on the wrath of the international community, which imposed economic sanctions now strangling this impoverished nation.

Under fuel and food shortages, Haiti has seen a rebirth of the paramilitary-military union that traditionally kept most Haitians down.

Gunmen have cut down at least a dozen people since Jan. 28.

While most Haitians struggle to survive, the military and its paramilitary allies profit, controlling black-market gasoline and much of the growing contraband market.

"The strong will dig in, and the weak will cave in," said an employee of a car-rental agency, pumping black-market gas — at $8 a gallon — into a rental car.

He spoke on condition of anonymity.

At least 10,000 people have died as a direct or indirect result of the sanctions, which are supported by Aristide.

Pro-military groups have organized demonstrations against the sanctions and pro-Aristide rallies are banned.

"Aristide deserves being impeached for visiting such a plague on his countrymen's heads," said Rep. Antoine Joseph, former president of Haiti's lower house of Parliament.

U.S. ferries massacre victims to West as Sarajevo mourns

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Three U.S. cargo planes evacuated victims of the massacre at the city's central market Sunday, while residents grieved and railed at a world they say should be stopping the fighting rather than mopping up after it.

The death toll from Saturday's shelling of the market rose to 68, the deadliest attack in the 22-month siege of the capital by Bosnian Serbs.

U.N. experts were still analyzing the shell's trajectory in an effort to pin down blame for the attack. There was no doubt among Sarajevans that the Serbs were responsible and what should be done about it.

"Where were you yesterday?" a young soldier of Bosnia's Muslim-led government shouted to a NATO jet howling overhead. "And what are you going to do today?"

Standing at the morgue, he supported his girlfriend, who softly cried "Papa, Papa," for her dead father.

The explosion of a single mortar shell at the market, which also wounded more than 200 people, spurred more of the debate that has paralyzed the international community for months.

The United Nations' top civilian official for the former Yugoslavia, Yasushi Akashi, said an emergency meeting of the Security Council was possible in the next two days.

Peoria's teen birthrate among nation's highest

PEORIA (AP) – When 16-year-old Denise Lewis gave birth Aug. 2, she joined one of the largest populations of single, teen mothers in the nation.

The baby's 18-year-old mother is in jail and has no plans to marry Lewis, herself the daughter of a single mother.

"I'm not having any more," she said soon after the birth of her daughter, Dasia Shaquala Perry. "I don't want any more soon," she later added.

"That's a blessing," said her mother, LaToya Harris.

On hand for the birth was Denise's sister, 29-year-old Tonette Lewis, who herself has five children. The family typifies of the problem facing Peoria and the nation, according to a story in Sunday's editions of the Journal Star of Peoria.

A yearlong study of the issue by the Journal Star revealed that single parents accounted for 48.7 percent of all babies born in Peoria in 1991. The national average was 29.5 percent.

Some of teens see no way to change the trend.

"There ain't nothing that can be done. People can't tell anyone not to have sex,"

Denise Lewis said.

But some people even refuse to recognize the issue.

"It's not universally accepted that teen pregnancy is a problem," said Robert Murray, director of the Peoria City-County Health Department.

It's a big problem to Suzanne Brasche, a social worker at Peoria's Methodist Medical Center. She sees new mothers so young and immature that they still enjoy coloring books and suck their thumbs as they recover from childbirth.

Critics say community leaders have waited too long to respond.

Clinton budget takes heat

WASHINGTON (AP) – Liberal Democrats and lobbyists aimed fire at President Clinton Sunday for cuts he will seek in his 1995 budget, as administration officials defended the $1.5 trillion blueprint on the eve of its release.

"I'm not satisfied with the budget," Rep. James M. Clyburn, D-Md., chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus, said Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Clyburn took special issue with Clinton's plans to whittle down spending for public housing and heating assistance, saying, "Those things are getting close to becoming what we call non-negotiable items."

Clinton's package, for the fiscal year that begins next Oct. 1, will lack the dramatic tax increases and spending reductions the president sought a year ago in his first budget.

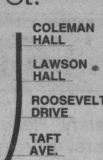

That proposal paved the way for last summer's enactment of his near-$500 billion deficit-reduction plan.

But to meet the tight strictures imposed by last August's package – and pay for increases Clinton wants for scores of other programs – the budget will propose eliminating 115 small programs, and holding nearly 600 others at or below the amounts they were allowed for this year.

The proposed cuts would total $25 billion, said one administration official who spoke Sunday on condition of anonymity.

Of that, $8 billion will be used to beef up favored programs such as job training and technological research, and the rest to contain a 1995 deficit the administration will project at $176.1 billion – the lowest level since 1989.

Harding's spot on Olympic team safe for now

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Tonya Harding vs. Nancy Kerrigan on the ice in Norway.

If it comes off, it will undoubtedly be one of the most dramatic confrontations in Olympic history. And perhaps one of the highest rated TV shows ever.

If it doesn't, the glamour event of the Winter Games will lose much of its sizzle.

Right now, it's still on, even though a U.S. Figure Skating Association panel called for a disciplinary hearing against Harding. The panel said Saturday that it found "reasonable grounds" to believe she was involved in the attack on Kerrigan at the national championships in Detroit a month ago.

Rather than boot Harding from the Olympic team, the association passed the decision on to the USOC along with a "black book" containing nearly 400

Case returned to USOC

LILLEHAMMER, Norway (AP) — The Tonya Harding affair is still an American matter, in the eyes of the IOC.

Harding's spot in the Lillehammer Games was discussed for the first time Sunday by the International Olympic Committee, which promptly turned it back to the U.S. Olympic Committee.

"The executive board wishes to express its full support for the U.S. Olympic Committee and is confident that the USOC will take the wisest decision in this matter, taking into account all circumstances," IOC director general Francois Carrard said.

He said the executive board unanimously agreed that the issue "is in the hands of the USOC at this stage."

Carrard left open the possibility that the IOC could get involved later, saying "various other options have been taken into account."

pages of affidavits, court documents and other evidence gathered independently by the panel.

Virtually all of that information is in the hands of prosecutors in Portland, Ore., who have not charged Harding in a plot that has already brought a guilty plea by her ex-husband Jeff Gillooly and confessions by three other men.

Claire Ferguson, president of USFSA, followed the rules of the association in not suspending Harding prior to the disciplinary hearing.

"I would prefer to have Tonya here her time with the hearing panel, to go through and to make sure she had her chance to speak with the member panel," Ferguson said Sunday on CBS' "Face the Nation."

Asked whether there were any conditions under which she might suspend Harding before the Olympics, Ferguson replied: "No, because I believe that the Olympics has a different set of rules that can handle this if they so choose. We are concerned with our world championships as well as the Olympics, which will be held in Lillehammer in the middle of March, and we want to have our team there."

Eastern swimmers sunk over weekend

writer

Eastern's swim team got a look at the cream of the crop, and the cream rose to the top.

The Panthers traveled to the University of Illinois-Chicago to take on the Flames and the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay Phoenix. Eastern's women lost to the Flames 72-42 and went down 66-36 to the Phoenix.

The Flames played a rude host to Eastern's men, as well, sinking them 94-20, while the Phoenix caged the Panthers 63-52.

None of these scores came as a great surprise to Panther coach Ray Padovan who said he knew in advance that both squads were highly advanced and will compete for the conference championship.

"The scores were somewhat predictable," Padovan said. "Green Bay's women were extremely tough and so was UIC's men. We were a lot closer to Green Bay's men but they swam tremendously."

Padovan was more worried about getting as many good swims in than he was about scores.

"It was a good meet but we got beat. We didn't swim poorly, we got in the swims we needed to get done," Padovan said. "We had a bunch of people swim at or close to their best times for the season."

Annell Metzger swam to a season's best in the 1000 free, with a time of 11:20.

Shawn O'Neill (50 free) and Jason Nonaka (200 breast-stroke) both had a best for the season, while Padovan said that Taff Nielsen had one of his best meets of the year, putting in good swims in both the 200 backstroke and in the 100-backstroke leg of the medley relay.

All of the dual meets are out of the way now, for the Panthers, and 100 percent of their concentration can be focused on the Mideast Classic.

"For the next week and a half, we will be doing a little less work but more intense work," Padovan said. "Whoever swims well (at the Mideast Classic) will be taken to the next meet (the Mid-Continent Conference Championship). All six months of work are wrapped into this next meet."

him seventh on Eastern's all-time list for the event.

Obadiah cooper easily advanced to the finals of both the 55 and 200-meter dashes and placed third (6.34) and sixth (22.32), respectively.

Nate Shaffer competed in the invitational mile, a race set aside from the regular mile contest for elite runners, and placed fifth.

Shaffer's finishing time of 4:14.12 took two seconds off his personal best which he ran on Indiana's track at the IAC Championships last year.

Head coach Neil Moore expressed disappointment with the team's showing overall, but said injuries and illness kept the Panthers from their true potential.

"There were spots where we looked better," said Moore. "The meet was worth while, but somewhat disappointing. We'll re-evaluate and go from there."

Neil Moore

Assistant coach John McInerney, who is in charge of the distance contingent, expressed both satisfaction and disappointment in Shaffer's mile.

The race was won by Darrell Hughes of Indiana in 4:04, and McInerney said Shaffer could have run faster if he had paced himself better.

"His third quarter really hurt him," said McInerney. "He went something like 1:01 for the quarter and 2:06 at the half, then threw in a 1:07 and closed with a 1:01. He's a little hesitant to stick his neck out."

The Panther's next competition will be the Central Collegiate Conference Championships at Michigan University next Saturday.

ing after pinning the Bears' Zane Heflin in the final period of their 190-pound bout. The pin brought the crowd to its feet and awarded the Panthers one pin away from a tie.

Freshman Pete Kolzow found himself in a high position.

Kolzow, who had just moved into the starting lineup, had not wrestled competitively recently and found his first match back to be the most important match of the night.

Kolzow started strong and was up 2-1 after the first period. But the Bears' Mike Rogers controlled the rest of the way and won 10-4.

The Panthers were left battered and bruised and had a long drive to Tennessee on Saturday afternoon to prepare for a 2 p.m. Sunday match with the University of Tennessee-Chanooga.

The only positive for the Panthers is that they do not wrestle again until February 17.

after the intermission. Despite that, Eastern was never able to score the big bucket to take a decisive lead.

"I think we need to improve on our individual shooting and realize what is a key situation during the game," said Eastern center Curtis Leib.

Leib scored three baskets within a 1-minute, 30-second span late in the game to keep the score close, but the Panthers were forced to foul after each bucket.

Four UIC players combined to hit six of eight free throws during the final two minutes.

Leib scored his final bucket with 22 seconds left to pull the Panthers to within one point at 76-75. Eastern then immediately called a timeout and came back to the court with the intent of fouling.

Landrus did just that and sent Williams to the line with 16 seconds left. After Williams sank both free throws, UIC took a 78-75 lead and called a timeout of its own.

During the timeout, Samuels called a play designed to get the ball to freshman Johnny Moore at the top of the key for a three-point shot.

Moore got the pass and took the shot with nine seconds left, but the ball rimmed out into the hands of a waiting UIC player.

"That was as good of a shot as we could have asked for," Samuels said. "We didn't feel like they were going to let us get it to Landrus."

Eastern was again forced to foul and sent the Flames' Charles Brakes to the line where he made two more free throws for an 80-75 UIC lead.

Down five points and out of timeouts with just five seconds left, the Panthers marched the ball down the court and into Moore's hands once again.

Moore tried another three-pointer from the same spot and made it with one second left on the clock to end all scoring.

Leib finished with a team-high 23 points while teammate Louis Jordan joined him as the only other Panther in double figures with 20.

Collier dished out a game-high seven assists, most of which went down low to Leib when Landrus, Eastern's scoring leader, was heavily defended.

UIC star Sherell Ford led all scorers with 24 points, including a 9-for-11 performance from the free-throw line in the second half.

Williams netted 17 points and teammates Mario Bailey and Michael Simmons scored 14 and 12 points, respectively.

Eastern's next game will be a 7:35 matchup tonight with Northern Illinois at Lantz Gymnasium.

Panthers burnt

Charities made the difference

By ROBERT MANKER
Associate sports editor

In looking at the statistics from Saturday night's men's basketball game, it's certainly not difficult to see where the game was decided.

The University of Illinois-Chicago Flames shot 20 more free throws than Eastern did and converted all but seven en route to a 80-78 Mid-Continent Conference win over the Panthers at Lantz Gym.

UIC connected on 35 of its 42 charities, including a 24-for-29 performance in the second half, compared to Eastern's 15-for-22 showing. The Panthers shot just 10 free throws in the second half and made only five.

Eastern head coach Rick Samuels stopped short of blatantly criticizing the officiating but said he was left wondering how such a disparity could occur.

"(The Flames) don't normally shoot the ball that well from the free-throw line, and I thought we should have had more opportunities to go to the free-throw line," Samuels said.

"I can't think when we go to the basket; (UIC) knocked that ball away clean every time. They can't all be clean plays."

The loss dropped Eastern's overall record to 8-9 and its league mark to 4-6. With the win, UIC improved to 12-6 overall and 8-2 in the conference.

The Panthers fell to 3-6 at home and evened their season record against UIC to 1-1. Eastern beat the Flames 91-89 last month in Chicago on a last-second basket by Derrick Landrus.

After trailing by as many as 13 points in the first half, the Panthers clawed their way back to a 36-all tie at the break.

"We need to stop digging ourselves a hole," said Eastern guard Troy Collier. "We can't keep coming back like that."

The Flames led for most of the second half but never opened up more than a five-point advantage at any point

Eastern home again tonight

The Eastern men's basketball team will take the floor for game four of its five-game homestand when it takes on the Huskies of Northern Illinois at Lantz Gym tonight at 7:35.

Northern comes into the ballgame with an 8-9 overall record and a 5-5 mark in the Mid-Continent Conference.

The Huskies are coming off a 69-63 home win over Valparaiso Saturday night.

After starting the season with a 3-7 record and dropping its first three Mid-Con games of the season, Northern has caught fire, winning five of its last seven.

The Huskies' winning stretch of late began when Northern defeated the Panthers 82-61 at the Chick Evans Field House in DeKalb on Jan. 17.

Northern is led by senior guard Mike Lipnisky and junior forward Hubert Register.

Women's hoops team falls to Western

By ANTHONY NASELLA
Staff writer

If the women basketball team's competitive performance against Mid-Continent Conference leader Northern Illinois was considered a step ahead, then its defeat Saturday to Western Illinois could be chalked up as a couple steps back.

And those were exactly head coach John Klein's thoughts after his Lady Panthers, who committed 34 turnovers and shot only 35 percent for the game, were trounced 79-52 by the Westerwinds before a crowd of 436 at Lantz Gym.

With the defeat, Eastern falls to 2-16 on the season, 1-10 in the Mid-Con. While Western, third place in the Mid-Con, improves to 11-8 on the year, 8-3 in conference.

"This game definitely didn't help our progress," Klein said. "We didn't play with a whole lot of concentration tonight. The turnovers and lack of offensive execution really hurt us."

"Western just played great game offensively and defensively. We couldn't contain them."

The Westerwinds, who shot 50 percent in the first half for a 41-28 half-time advantage, delivered the fatal blow with an 11-0 at the start of the second half, giving them a 52-28 lead with 15:26 left in regulation.

Earlier, Western took charge of the contest with an 11-0 run that gave it a 24-9 advantage with 9:54 to play in the first half. Eastern didn't help its cause committing 11 turnovers in the first 10 minutes of play.

The Westerwinds grabbed an early 13-4 advantage due in part to seven Eastern miscues. The Lady Panthers answered back with five straight points, but Western fired back with the 11-0 run.

"We came out focused and executed our offense well, which gave us a lot of confidence," Westerwinds head coach Regina Miller said. "Each game we've been executing a little better. And a game like this really helps us a lot."

Nicky Polka and Shannon Baugh shared team-high honors for the Lady Panthers with 11 points. Eastern shot 40 percent in the first half and were still within striking distance at half-time.

Meanwhile, Western, who shot 75 percent for the game, >>>>>> was led by Oberon Pitterson (16 points, 10 rebounds, seven steals), Lori Haskins (16 points, nine rebounds) and V. Adelman (14 points) and Melissa Smith (13 points).

For Klein, questions still remain in his mind concerning his team's intensity and effort, particularly after a loss of this nature to Western.

"We should be fired up every game considering we have only two wins," Klein said. "Two wins should be a motivation for any team to be fired up. We need to find a balance."

"But I just don't know what to do right now. I know that we're a whole better team than the way we played tonight."

Men's track team falters in Indiana

By BRIAN HARRIS
Staff writer

Confronted with its toughest competition of season, the men's track team placed only three individuals at the Indiana Invitational over the weekend.

The meet was run on Friday and Saturday, and was dominated by Indiana, Middle Tennessee State, Indiana State and Miami of Ohio.

Preliminaries were held Friday, and very few Panthers went further.

However, Kert McAfee won his heat of the 400-meter dash with a time just under 50 seconds and went on to place third in Saturday's final. Less than a meter behind the winner, McAfee, a freshman, ran his fastest time of the season at 49.30.

Wrestlers suffer loss, injuries

By PAUL DEMPSEY

Trying to accept a 24-15 defeat at the hands of Southwest Missouri State was hard enough for Eastern's wrestling team. But watching two of its members go down with injuries was too much for the team to swallow.

"I don't know how much more I can take," said coach Ralph McCausland, obviously flustered after two of his wrestlers had to go to the hospital with injuries.

Steve Smerz suffered a laceration on his head in the second period of his 134-pound match after butting heads with the Bears' David Ross. The cut required nine stitches and will limit Smerz to light practices this week. The stitches will probably come out on Friday.

Tim Fix was not as lucky.

Ralph McCausland

Fix broke his left leg during his 167-pound match. He was able to finish the match but was in obvious pain as he struggled to a 17-9 defeat.

The Panthers fought themselves down 21-6 in Fix's match and it looked like Southwest Missouri State was on its way to a convincing win.

But the Panthers did quit. Rich Murry won at 177 pounds to bring Eastern within 12 points, keeping alive a slim possibility of a tie if the Panthers could manage pins in the remaining two matches.

Freshman Tony Duncan kept the ho
